MARY BALDWIN COLLEGE

For one year we have been through it together — the happy moments and the sad. We have depended upon each other to make things work. And work they did! The '78-'79 year at Mary Baldwin College has been a challenge, a reward, and a time to remember for us all.

As part of the continuing cycle, we came to MBC with at at least one thing in common — an apprehension of what might lie waiting within those walls.

Well, seeing was believing — almost! It would be impossible to relate our experiences of the past year to an outsider. But for those of us who have lived them, words are unnecessary.

We came to Mary Baldwin to learn, to grow, and to change.

But have we accepted the challenge of change? The justification, if any, of this challenge must lie in its results. What we are is what we have learned to be, and the final responsibility for this growth — individual or collective, good or bad — is and always has been directly our own.

This responsibility would have been a lonely one indeed if not for the friendships we have found, for they have sustained and nurtured us through all the ups and downs. We have suffered together and laughed together, and, through the obscure workings of one moment to the next, contributed greatly to each other.

The biggest and best change of all has been some 700 women, most total strangers to each other pulling together and becoming one unified community. To learn to live together should be the ultimate goal: to accept each person as an individual regardless of her beliefs, the highest ideal

Yet we should look at the past as nothing more than the past. One may find a certain strength in the past, or moments of anguish. The past cannot be changed, the future is still in our power. Time cannot be expanded, accumulated, mortgaged, hastened, or retarded.

We must all accept the challenge of Change.

APPLE DAY

Many things change at Mary Baldwin, but one tradition will always be with us — Apple Day!! This year, the Class of 1981 began planning for Apple Day even before unpacking.

Like every class before them, this year's Sophomores began with lots of enthusiasm and very little money, but a date had been set and they had acquired that all important liquor license!

The Sophomores worked well into the wee hours on Second Floor Academic and behind locked doors to keep it a secret. Telltale red and green paint was spotted on the Class of '81, and the entire school wanted to know when the Big Day was. Girls guessed! Excitement grew until finally it was announced that October 18 was the day!

MORE APPLE DAY

The Apple Day Dance was a great success, and those togas were simply smashing! The Sophomores gave MBC the grandest lawn party of the season. Everything was gaily decked out for the day's festivities.

Students awoke in great anticipation of what lay in store. After some serious early-morning partying, they wormed their way to SMA for candied apples, apple games, and barrels of fun!!

The day was a success, even if the cider did run short and representatives from Hollins and Sweetbriar crashed the party. Come visit us again next year, Cone Apples!!!

1-9-8-1; Never outdone!

OUR TOWN . . .

Our Town — Staunton, Virginia. To those of us from larger cities, Staunton may seem a bit tame. To those from the flatlands, it is the city on seven-hundred hills. To those from the coast, it seems an eternity from the ocean. And to those from small towns, it is just another small town.

Staunton is an old town, weathering the winds of change well. Although it has kept up with the times, it has managed to maintain its homey small-town atmosphere. Many towns revolve soley around the college or university that makes its home there, but Staunton and MBC have grown up together.

Staunton is an old town, weathering the wind of change well. Although it has kept pace with the times, it has managed to maintain its homey, small-town atmosphere. It has the traditional "main street", where most shoppers can find everything they need. Or, a casual stroll downtown can give the observer an opportunity to examine and admire the century-old Victorian architecture of many of its buildings.

Saturday afternoon could fine one frolicking in one of Staunton's several parks. There are probably few Baldwin girls who have not relived high school days by "going for a cruise in Gypsy Hill Park at dusk, accompanied by a few "cold ones!" Some have even been known to give impromptu performances in the huge gazebo near the entrance. Or one could simply feed, or talk to, the animals.

Most of us probably never think about Staunton, the town, except for the fact that Mary Baldwin calls it home, and for eight months out of the year, we call it home. Many towns have grown up and revolve solely around the college or institution that makes it home there, but Staunton and MBC have grown up together. Few who come here form other areas can help but marvel at the beauty of Staunton's surroundings — the beautiful Shenandoah Valley.

October 4, 1978 was the 148th anniversary of the birth of Mary Julia Baldwin, the woman responsible for our being here today, and we celebrated the occasion in grand style. The Senior class gave a representation of what might have been, via skits, and posed such questions as, "What would MJB think of a Disco Dolly, or a raid from VMI?" or how about, "Hey, Mary Julia, do you know what virgins eat for breakfast?" No, I didn't think so!! "Do you minuet, or can you Gator?" The entertainment ended with a dramatic presentation of MJB on a rack date! Mary Baldwin, you aren't getting older, you're getting better!!

HAPPY BIRTHDAY MARY BALDWIN!!

FOUNDER'S DAY

Each Fall, Mary Baldwin College holds its annual Founders' Day ceremony. This occasion, the official birthday of MBC, marks both the Seniors' Investiture and Senior/Freshmen Parents' Day.

The day began with a reception hosted by the faculty and administration in honor of the Freshmen, the Seniors, and their parents. Following the reception was the formal investiture ceremony, led off by the procession of Seniors dressed in their gowns with caps in hand. President Lester made her remarks and the Seniors put on their caps, with tassels to the right, symbolizing that they were officially degree candidates.

MBC BIG WEEKEND

FALL TAPS

This Fall, a new tradition was born at Mary Baldwin College — "Fall Taps 1978." What does "Fall Taps" mean?? Tanked at Parties!! Our Big Weekend was kicked off with the ceremonial raising of the official flag, accompanied by a bugler — a bugler playing "Taps??"

Friday night found us living it up at the Greenhouse, enjoying great tunes, great beer, and very little concern for not having a date.

A Saturday evening spent with the Backstabbers proved to be a wild night indeed, with beer gradoo on the floor, and bruises galore!! It was a swell party, even if the area dry cleaners did have a booming business on Monday.

Sunday was a good time for a Royal pig-out at Brunch. A good idea, yes, but some were too embarrassed to eat that much in front of their dates. Following Brunch was our first Sunday Party of the season — a "best-ever," with the Tams and the "Baby Tam."

"Be Young, Be Foolish, but Be Happy" — how many weeks until the next Sunday Party?

TWO BY TWO

JUNIOR DAD'S!

We are all leaders of individuality, yet examples of unity. Through our diversity we share a common bond — our ring. It is a symbol of pride in our accomplishments, and in Mary Baldwin College. On November 11, our rings were presented to us by our dads, in the Mary Baldwin tradition, followed by a celebration that will remain in our hearts forever.

The night was rather chilly, especially standing in a long line outside with only a sleeveless dress. But Dad, gallant as always, would offer his jacket, a bit large, perhaps, but nice and warm. Then came the one moment in the spotlight, stepping into the over-sized ring to receive ours, plus a kiss from Dad, followed by the first dance with Dad and his "best girl". And he was probably thinking, "The next time I dance with her will probably be her wedding."

Over all, it was a fine evening, if Mom did not mind playing second fiddle, but all too soon it was over. For Dad, it was the kind of evening that makes all Dads say, "Thank heaven for little girls!"

FRESHMAN FOLLIES

Freshman Follies marked the real debut of the Class of 1982. It was their first activity as a class, and the first time we allowed them to appear, as such, publicly. It was indeed a pleasant surprise to find that here was a class after our own hearts!! The traditional skits involving frat parties and the sheltered girl, those great guys from Veemee Land, and our usually forgotten "competition", Sweetbriar, made us secure in the knowledge that such traditions never die. "If their moms could see them now," they would feel as we do — proud that they have entered the mainstream of Baldwin Life easily!!

BASKETBALL

Under the direction of coaches John Wells and Tim Brown, Women's Basketball once again became a part of MBC life. Led by Senior Susie Miska, and All-Conference Player, the team finished its season with six wins and seven losses. Faculty and student support was impressive for a first-year team, and it was not unusual to find Dr. Lester herself, with bell in hand, cheering the Squirrels on.

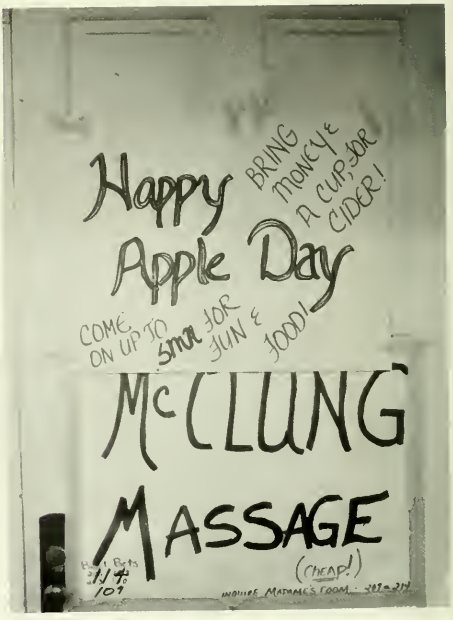
DORM LIFE . . .

Somewhere out of the mist of childhood memories comes an old saying uttered by probably the wisest sage of all time: "You never really know someone until you have lived with her." Except under the bond of marriage, nowhere is this truer than a college dorm. Perhaps the first person a freshman gets to know is her roommate. Then comes the challenge of getting to know the girls on her hall. Of course, she will get to know many other girls on campus, but nothing can quite take the place of the camaraderie with the girls on the hall.

During the daylight hours, the campus is regularly patroled by an army of highly sophisticated and intelligent young women, each waging a campaign to attain academic excellence. But at night, when the grounds are quiet, the dorms are crawling with sometimes other-than-academic pursuits. Where else can seemingly normal young women go absolutely bananas except in the privacy of their own dorms?

CHAOS, INC.!!



Oh, the joys of dorm living, where one's individuality and originality are constantly put to the test. Where else can one skate-board up and down the hall, pig-out on an array of delectables, borrow an entire outfit from several different people, get blitzed without worrying about who's driving home, find someone to help with a difficult course, or get up a group for a last-minute, late-night roll? And there is always someone around who can lend a hand when the going gets rough, and the list of "things-to-do" does not seem to have an end.

Anyone who has never experienced a dorm environment has truly missed some valuable lessons in human nature. Living with a group of girls from different geographical locations and all walks of life is an education in itself. Just listening to all the different regional accents adds to the enjoyment of meeting new people. It is in meeting new people that we find other values to compare to our own. Some we will alter slightly, some we will discard completely, and others we will reaffirm and strengthen.

But the most fascinating aspect of dorm life is watching how people change, especially the shy, sheltered freshman who survives the "rude awakening" and finally finds her self-confidence and her niche at MBC. Shortly before graduation, it is funny to look back at the "way we were" and wonder, "Were we really that silly?" or "Was I really voted Hall Fool?" Then comes the inevitable question — Was living in a place like that instead of commuting to a nearby school really worth it? For those of us who have lived here, the value is inestimable.

Dedication

Four years may seem like an eternity to a young woman waiting to get out into the world, but four years at Mary Baldwin College can make the wait worthwhile. A very special group of young women are now finishing up their four-year sojourn here, and for those of us in the underclasses who have known them, they have made our stay here worthwhile.

It is to these women, the Class of 1979, that we dedicate this book. We have tried to gather as complete a record as possible of the good times had at MBC this year. It is our sincere hope that as you look through the '79 BLUESTOCKING now, and in years to come, you may find what will suggest to you the happiest of memories of your last year with us.

"Laugh and be merry together, like sisters akin,
Guesting awhile in the rooms of a beautiful inn,
Glad till the dancing stops, and the lilt of the music ends.
Laugh till the game is played; and be you merry, my friends."

And I want to live in the sun
And I want to do all the things that I have never done.

"I met an old man once; on a Mediterranean beach. He told me that he collects friends; much as others collect stamps. But he does not catalogue or grade them; he does not scrutinize them under a magnifying glass and bright light to see if they have torn edges, or if they have a watermark which could instantly tell him their quality; he doesn't check their postmarks to see where they've come from; and he doesn't place them one above the other, according to value, or age, or attractiveness. He just keeps them in his album.
He calls it his heart."

As I reach this point in the year, it really makes me stop and think, not only because now I must find the words for this page, but because now, our book is complete. As with anything that demands a lot of time, energy, and patience, I find myself wondering if the production of this book was really worth the effort, not only for my own personal satisfaction, but for that of the staff as well. I keep asking myself if this is the very best we could do. But that is not for the few who produce to decide. The final judgement comes from those for whom this book has been published — our peers. Perhaps if there is one thing, anything — the cover, a particular picture, or maybe even one phrase — that sticks in the mind and makes you remember this year, and makes this book individually important, then yes, my year has been worthwhile.

The putting together of a yearbook is an awesome undertaking, as any and every editor will tell you, for it involves countless hours of work, worry, argument, compromise, and those occasional bursts of temper which do help ease some of the tension. All of this results in frayed nerves, a loss of mind, and dwindling strength. Many times, the only feedback is criticism — generally negative, for innovations do not come easily, and acceptance is hard won. There is no financial gain, and all to often, little praise.

On behalf of my staff, I wish to acknowledge and thank Dr. Frank Pancake, our advisor, for all of his time, effort, and interest in us as people, and Jim Ellis, our representative from Hunter Publishing, who smoothed over all of our little crises, and whose patience was sorely tried. To my staff editors, the Magnificent Seven, and their staffs, of whom the faithful few can almost be counted on one hand, you know how invaluable your help has been, and that were it not for each of you, this book would not exist. I would like to personally thank Super R. and R. Jr., who came through in the crunch, and whose combined efforts helped me elude those little men with the butterfly nets. Thanks, guys!!

For those who work on future staffs, and especially to Roz, who inherits my headaches for next year, I hope you have a lot of faith and even more patience — they will be needed. Good Luck

As a collective whole, we extend hearty greetings to all of our readers, trusting you will praise the good and look with leniency on our faults. I hope that in two, five, or even twenty years, some of you will be able to look at the 1979 BLUESTOCKING and say, "That's what I remember about Mary Baldwin!"

A whirlwind of daydreams carries me far beyond reality and into the distant haze of tomorrow. The bewonderment of the totality of all things overwhelms me as I toss dreams to the currents of air between yesterday and today. Through an increasing understanding of myself, I can sense that I am growing inside and slowly evolving into a whole person. I am filled with exaultation as the chaos of my mind yields to order, as uncertainty makes way for security. The search for my value as an individual, as an integral part of humanity begins and ends in change.

Confusion and euphoria simultaneously affect me during thoughts dealing with others. I often experience feelings of alienation from many seemingly well-adjusted people. At other moments, though, I seem to have found my niche in the Mary Baldwin community. My reactions to human relationships stem from the constant activity of the changes within me, and I realize that people, like snowflakes, are each different, unique, each a one of a kind miracle, and each one a very special self.

A myriad of diversions and occurences have filled my hours. Some appear to be so senseless and unenlightening. Yet, I perceive that I am gathering unlimited knowledge from seemingly trivial feats. Like stones in a kaleidoscope, the dispersed events of my life assume a meaningful pattern. And so the countdown begins. As winter's blanket slowly dissolves, I look forward to Spring, the season of new beginnings, and also, endless goodbyes. With all the quickness of a light-switch, my life at Mary Baldwin College will be over, for time, relentless time, marches to an unchanging tempo, unlike the dog, who forever follows his master.

Sophomore Show

Try Outs . . . row, row, row your boat . . . I'm in love with a girl named Fred . . . Dress rehearsal and champaign receptions don't mix . . . Nancy sprained her what??? . . . Kathryn, have you learned to blow bubbles and yo-yo at the same time? . . . Boy flower, girl flower — OH now I understand . . . the chorus looks great . . . Sing louder! . . . Sophomore Show is behind us, next stop is Junior Dad's . . . WE MADE IT!!!

Commencement Ball

Surrounded by this gathering of mountains we come, people who gather with so much to offer
by chance thrown together, given one hundred years of tradition and opportunity to sculpt our ideal self — we,
sometimes divided, always different still collectively a whole, and generally in the face of time — muddle along.
Making the tradition our own,
adding ourselves to it,
perpetuating and changing it,
living this time here given us.
